Hannahville Indian Community would conduct a scoping project to evaluate and summarize potential wastewater collection options around the shoreline north of the Escanaba River. The region has been interested in development for years, but continued growth of the area is limited by availability of wastewater collection, as new housing developments would take place if an extension of a collection system were made possible. The scoping project will explore the existing use of the sanitary collection system within the City of Escanaba for a potential tie in location in Wells Township to the wastewater treatment plant and review its available capacity to determine if additional demand can be treated at the facility. The goals of this project align with the state's interest in economic development and increasing housing availability.
