Harbor Island has been used for industrial purposed and waste disposal for over 100 years. These operations have resulted in environmental impacts that the City of Grand Haven is addressing in cooperation with EGLE. The ultimate goal is creating a plan to mitigate the health and environmental risks on Harbor Island.

As part of the environmental investigation of the former JB Sims power plant, PFAS constituents were detected. In early 2022, the City's environmental consultants began preparing a Work Plan to investigate PFAS at the former plant. Harbor Island sits just a mile upstream from Lake Michigan. Funding would support pfas remediation and removal efforts by the city, ensuring that our great lakes remain safe and clean.
