The Henry Ford in Dearborn, Michigan, is an internationally recognized cultural destination that brings the past forward by immersing visitors in the stories of ingenuity, resourcefulness and innovation that helped shape America. A National Historic Landmark with an unparalleled collection of artifacts from 300 years of American history, The Henry Ford is a force for sparking curiosity and inspiring tomorrow's innovators. More than 1.7 million visitors annually experience its venues.

Currently much of the security infrastructure relies on outdated monitoring and communications systems pieced together over decades of security investment. It does not have capacity to be integrated with building environmental controls, perimeter security tracking, maintenance and repair support, training, and safety protocols, and other operational framework. The life cycles and lifespans of security technology components differ substantially, interfering with the ability of equipment to work effectively, creating points of failure or degradation in our security operations center.

A comprehensive assessment was previously commissioned by The Henry Ford which examined both physical security infrastructure in conjunction with the culture and operations of the Henry Ford Museum of American Innovation, Greenfield village, and campus. The resulting recommendation consisted of multiple technologies integrating into a common platform that would enable The Henry Ford to achieve its mission to protect the guest, staff, and collection while providing for vertical integration of purchasing, logistics, installation, custom integration, preventative maintenance, training, repair, software licensing, system audits and technology renewal.

Every component would be aligned with a common goal and included within an operational command center.

The construction of an integrated Operational Center will unify operations across all business units and allow for more efficient communication and coordination to better serve the guest experience. It is designed with technology components specifically selected and implemented to work together as a cohesive system to protect our public goods and assets, facilities, staff and visitors to THF, along with a focused and measured eye toward the key principles of preparedness, prevention, and protection. We would be implementing an affordable and sustainable solution that deploys the latest and most advanced technologies. It has been purposely designed to not only solve current cross-departmental personnel and technology issues but to anticipate future infrastructure investments for continued long term success.
